CME Program:

"Obstacles to Gaining Control of Hypertension" Available on HeartWire

Interested in learning about ways other providers are working with patients to gain better blood pressure control? Don't have time to read full articles on the STITCH or ACCOMPLISH trials, but would like to remain up to speed on their results?

Then participate in HeartWire's spotlight program: "Obstacles to Gaining Control of Hypertension." This presentation gives an efficient overview of the different reasons gaining blood pressure control among our patients can be so difficult and strategies providers can use to overcome barriers. The program also highlights data and information from the recent STITCH and ACCOMPLISH trials. Physicians can obtain .25 CME credit for participating in this 20 minute program.

Interested in more ways to help your patients get the best blood pressure care possible? Then contact the MaineHealth Cardiovascular Health Program to participate in its Blood Pressure Measurement Review and Update Program. To date, over 10 practices have participated in the program and 100% of participants would recommend this session to other practices! To read more about the program and comments from participants, please click here.
